

An inbox for one kitchen at a time.

Inbox

12 new

BT

Welcome to the roast (10% off inside)

Fresh Indian coffee, roasted after you order.

WELCOME

BT

Quick question: how do you brew?

One tap and every email after this is about your brewer.

QUIZ

BT

Your Attikan Estate is waiting

We haven't roasted it yet. Finish your order.

CART

BT

Day 21: how's the bag looking?

By our maths, you're on your last few brews.

REFILL

BT

Brew Notes #14: this one's for your brewer

A coffee pick, a tip and a farm story.

NEWS

Every brand sends the same line. So I didn't.

WHAT EVERYONE SENDS

~~You left something in your cart~~

WHAT I'D SEND

Your Attikan Estate is waiting (we haven't roasted it yet)

Names the exact coffee and turns roast-to-order freshness into the reason to come back.

AND NEVER

~~LAST CHANCE!!! 20% OFF ENDS TONIGHT~~

21 days

By our maths, two cups a day means you're down to your last few brews.

Bag about 14% full from order date + bag size

Reorder in one tap

Subscribe, never run out

Sent when a 250 g bag actually runs out, not on a random schedule. The fill meter makes the message obvious in one glance.

5 flows. 1 newsletter. 1 rule.

- 1

Welcome

A gift, a one-tap brew quiz, then the peacock story.
- 2

Abandoned cart

"We haven't roasted it yet." Tips at 24 h, a nudge at 72 h.
- 3

Replenishment

Timed to when the bag runs out, then subscribe.
- 4

Win-back

No guilt trip. Leads with what's new, plus "get fewer emails".
- 5

Post-purchase

Brew guide for their exact brewer, then a review ask.

+

Brew Notes

Every other Tuesday. Personalised by brewer, roast and lifecycle.

What I'd measure, against 2026 benchmarks.

35%

Campaign open rate

31% average · top 10% reach 45.1%

2.5%+

Click rate

Above 2% is considered strong

8%+

Abandoned cart recovery

8-12% for top performers

40%+

Revenue from flows

Klaviyo-wide average is 41%

<0.3%

Unsubscribe rate

Plus SPF, DKIM, DMARC, a 180-day sunset flow and a preference centre.

Akshara Singh

Email marketing & CRM. Strategy, flows, segmentation, copy and mobile-first design.

Akshara.singh.marketing@gmail.com

Brand story, between the promotions.

"Tokai" comes from an old Malabari word for a peacock's tail. The founders chose it for the beauty and complexity they wanted in every cup. Email 3 tells that story, so the brand is worth remembering.